

Mary McHugh

Chief Delivery and Supply Chain Officer

Mary McHugh was named chief delivery and supply chain officer of Xerox effective Feb. 4, 2020. She is also an executive vice president of Xerox Holdings Corporation.

Mary is responsible for the global delivery and supply chain for Xerox products, services, consumables and supplies. This includes the worldwide strategy and operation of our manufacturing sites, customer service operations and delivery centers.

Mary joined Xerox in June 2018 as a senior vice president and chief delivery officer, leading both the company's global service delivery mission and the operations for the equipment and toner manufacturing sites. Before joining the company, she served as the senior vice president of North America SaaS Implementation Success management and SaaS consulting at Oracle. Previously, she was the senior vice president of Global Solution Design and Delivery at Hewlett Packard Enterprise and spent 28 years at IBM in roles of increasing responsibility within the Global Services organization, including engineering, marketing, sales, channel management and professional service delivery.

Mary earned a Master of Business Administration degree from Simmons College and a bachelor's degree in Electrical Engineering from Manhattan College.