

Nicole Torraco

Chief Strategy and M&A Officer

Nicole Torraco was named Chief Strategy and M&A Officer for Xerox effective in January 2020. In this role, Nicole is leading the growth of Xerox's strategy and business development. She is also a senior vice president of Xerox Holdings Corporation.

Under Nicole's leadership, four Xerox acquisitions have closed, including Vader Systems, which brings Xerox its break-thru 3D technology, as well as Heritage Business Systems, Rabbit Office Automation and Arena Group, building on Xerox's small-to-medium sized business distribution presence. She also led the strategic review and sales process of Xerox's financing business.

Nicole joined Xerox in May 2018 as vice president of Corporate Strategy and M&A, after spending over a decade investing in stressed, distressed and event-driven debt and equity securities, most recently at Onex Corp. and Babson Capital. Before her work in the investment world, Nicole was at Rothschild and Gleacher & Co, advising on corporate restructurings and M&A.

Nicole earned her Master of Business Administration degree with honors from The Wharton School and a bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, from Harvard University.
