Suzan Morno-Wade was named chief human resources officer effective November 2018, and is an executive vice president of Xerox Holdings Corporation. In this role, Suzan leads Xerox’s strategy for global human resources, corporate security, communications, and payroll to facilitate and drive the company’s transformation, future growth and success. She is responsible for instilling and developing best practices around organization capability; diversity, inclusion and belonging; talent management; HR technology and analytics; security services, emergency response/crisis management, internal communications, and payroll services.

Suzan joined Xerox in 2016 as vice president of global Total Rewards to lead the company’s compensation and benefits strategy. She has over 20 years of progressive human resources leadership experience spanning several industries, including positions at global organizations including Hess, Quantum, Mitsubishi, General Electric and Quaker Oats.

In 2019, Suzan was recognized by Black Enterprise, the premier resource for African American professionals, for her professional contributions and named her one of the “Most Powerful Women in Corporate America.”

Suzan serves on the Boards of Latham Pool Products and A Better Chance (ABC), an organization focused on increasing the number of well-educated young people of color in the United States. Previously, she served on the boards of Center for Urban Community Services (CUCS) and Financial Women’s Association (FWA).

Suzan began her career in finance and is a graduate of GE’s Financial Management Program (FMP). She holds multiple human resources certifications as well as a Bachelor of Science degree in Accounting from the University of Illinois.
