

Xavier Heiss

Chief Financial Officer

Xavier Heiss was named chief financial officer of Xerox effective Jan. 1, 2021. He most recently served as interim chief financial officer beginning on Sept. 30, 2020. Xavier was appointed an executive vice president of Xerox Holdings Corporation in February 2020 and has been an officer of the company since February 2015.

Previously, he was the president of EMEA Operations and before that served as the controller of Xerox and chief financial officer of the company's Americas Operations. In this role, Xavier was responsible for driving the company's finance initiatives including corporate financial planning and analysis, ensuring effective internal controls and providing strategic projects and business planning support. As CFO for the Americas Operations, he was responsible for leading financial operations in North, Central and South America, as well as managing pricing, contracting, revenue and costs improvement initiatives.

Xavier has been with Xerox for more than 30 years, having joined the company in IT sales in France. Throughout his tenure, he has held positions of increasing responsibility in finance, sales and general management. Before joining Xerox, Xavier held sales roles at Renault and Procter & Gamble.

He graduated with a Master of Business Administration degree in information technology and finance from Reims Neomia International Business School and a certification in business and international finance from INSEAD, Fontainebleau, France.
